Peninsula airport master plan projects growth

In September, the Monterey Peninsula Airport District will begin public hearings on a 20-year master plan which already has excited the opposition and roused the consternation of many on the Peninsula.

The plan, which is now in the formative stage, is an FAA (Federal Aviation Administration) sponsored study launched in mid-1974, and costing about $100,000 to inventory airport needs and to suggest developmental plans for the next two decades.

Some 31 public agencies allegedly have been contacted for their participation in drafting the plan, but District Mgr. Nick Ford believes some of the local officials were confused when they took a look at the plan, and were unclear what their role was supposed to be.

Recently, the Seaside Planning Commission, in adopting a noise element to the general plan, took note of Planning Director William Burris' reservations about the effectiveness of a noise ordinance when the two largest sources of noise on the Monterey Peninsula--the airport and Fort Ord--are independently-administered agencies not directly answerable to municipalities.

Although the Monterey Peninsula Airport District board of directors is elected by the voters of the district, an area roughly contiguous with the Monterey Peninsula College District, it is a separate political entity with its own power of taxation and administration.

The current district tax rate is 6.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation, which means that every property owner has a direct financial state in the affairs of the district. Obviously, every resident of the Monterey Peninsula, property owner or not, has a stake as well in the future of the district, for its future is tied in intimately with environmental and economic concerns of the Peninsula.

The consultant working with the district on perparation of the 20-year master plan is R. Dixon Speas of Irvine. Once the initial, inventory phase of the study was completed, an advanced forecast phase was conducted to predict what might transpire in the period studies, 1975-1995.

At present, there are 150,000 operations annually at the airport. An "operation" is defined in aviation argot as eigher a takeoff or landing. The bulk of those operations are classed as itinerant, general operations, or, commercial jetliner flights.

The second most prevalent use for the airport is local, general operations, or, private aircraft. Ford said the consultant estimates that the airport will have reached its maximum capacity by 1982 if two commercial carriers--Air California and PSA--that are seeking routes to Monterey are added.

The demand and the capacity of the airport to handle future demand was determined by the consulting firm by feeding into a computer statistics on population, projected future growth and population increase, income levels, and comparisons with national averages.

Ford said the thinking of the district is that the extension of the existing major runway by 1,000 feet is essential unless all future demand is to be turned away and some present operations are to be curtailed.

"This will improve safety and noise factors, but we'd still run out of capacity in 1987 or 1989," he said. The other means of extending capacity into the future include adding a parallel general operations runway; extending the main runway and adding a parallel general operations runway; and doing both of those and establishing a "straight-in" runway, where all takeoffs and landings would be in one direction.

The third phase of the study was the environmental Health needs to get a shot

The County of Monterey and the City of Seaside have taken the first step toward joint participation in a federal project to improve the level of health care services in Seaside.

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors gave conceptual approval last week to a proposal from the Seaside Medical Services and Facilities Committee to participate with the city in drawing up a preliminary application to the National Health Services Corps to recruit physicians to practice here.

The proposal is that both the city and county share in the costs of local, "seed" monies necessary to insure the financial participation of the NHSC in recruitment, location and the hiring under contract of one or more physicians.

City Mgr. Dudley Lapham explained in a letter to the board of supervisors that the city council's position is based on the finding in a report on health care services prepared by Booz, Allen and Hamilton, Inc. that "the County of Monterey in cooperation with the City of Seaside should be responsible for a recruitment program for additional physicians to practice in Seaside."

That report was completed Nov. 26, 1974 and funded by the county as part of its purchase agreement of the site at Broadway and Noche Buena where the new county health and welfare building is being erected at what was once known as "the pit."

Economic incentives, such as guaranteed initial income, subsidized rent, office equipment, personnel, and other factors are noted in that report as vital.

And the Mid-Coast Comprehensive Health Planning Association last year designated Seaside as a "medical scarcity" area, which, with the concurrence of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, makes it eligible to apply for NHSC benefits.

"It is our position that a joint city-county co-sponsored application be submitted to NHSC with a corresponding joint commitment to evenly share necessary front money," Lapham said.

Lapham estimated that the total amount of participation in the application would be $15,000 for both the city and county, for a total of $30,000. Under NHSC guidelines, the community being served has input on the selection process.

The exact amount of financial commitment by both the city and county will be determined later when budget funds are parceled out and after the preliminary application has been studied.

The members of the committee are Seaside City Mgr. Dudley Lapham, County Health Director Dr. Robert Bowersox, Ed Colvin of the Monterey County Medical Society, Richard Sinclair of the Dental Association, Communications Director Art McDole, Alan Samuels of the Mid-Coast Comprehensive Health Planning Association, and County Hospital Administrator Tom Skouros.

The agreement of the committee, after several study sessions, was that at least two physicians must be recruited for Seaside through NHSC. The need for dental care will be somewhat offset by the planned construction in Seaside of a new professional building, in which dentists' offices will be located. But the committee expressed a similar desire for two

THE SEASIDE Youth Center sponsored a ping-pong tournament as part of its summer recreational program last week, and winners lined up afterwards for trophies from director Glenn Hanley (far right). The winners were (from left): Tim Dunn, first place in boys age 10 to 12; Terrie Rigales, Girls' champ; and Ron Ellis, Youth Center champ. In coming weeks, there will be pool, pin ball, table soccer, bike hikes, and other activities.

Rate hike hearings continue as water shutoff date comes

There was water water everywhere last week on the minds of Monterey Peninsula residents.

The Public Utilities Commission conducted a week of hearings at Seaside City Hall into a requested 20 per cent rate increase by the California-American Water Co. at the same time that local builders stormed into municipal offices in a last minute rush to get building permits before June 30.

Unless reversed or extended by the P.U.C., that's the date when all new connections of water mains in the Monterey service district will halt under an order handed down two weeks ago by the P.U.C.

The only exceptions are municipally-sponsored redevelopment projects, most of which are in Monterey and Seaside.

Most of the cities of the Peninsula have adopted a uniform resolution calling upon the P.U.C. not to grant any rate hikes to Cal-Am without some assurances that the proposed Canada de la Segunda water pipeline and the Begonia Iron Removal Plant will be built.

Cal-Am contends, on the other hand, that revenues and profits are inadequate to finance further operations. Crucial to the water question are concerns of both supply and quality. In some parts of Seaside, for example, water quality is so poor that residents must use bottled water for drinking.

And there is a real concern that increased pumping of water from the Seaside aquifer to supply customers in other areas of the Peninsula may bring about salt water intrusion, which would be irreversible.

Many of the concerns of the cities were focused last week at the meeting of the Monterey County Zone 11 Water Advisory Committee which convened Monday in Seaside City Hall.

At that meeting, Richard Sullivan, attorney for Cal-Am, said the utility is looking into the legal possibiliities of an environmental impact report for further water extraction from the Carmel River aquifer and for construction of the Canada de la Segunda pipeline and the Begonia plant.

A representative of the Army Corps of Engineers told the committee that a study of alternatives for the construction of an additional dam on the upper Carmel River is scheduled to be completed by Aug. 18 for review.

The Corps of Engineers estimates that the design of the dam would take three years, and a feasibility report to Congress on it will be presented this year, on schedule. Construction of the dam is targeted for 1979-82, providing proper financing can be arranged.

Sullivan told the committee that Cal-Am estimates a total of 16,500 acre feet of water will be required to meet demands in the Monterey district in 1975-76, whereas the estimated safe yield of the aquifer is 15,500 acre feet.

"We're still accepting new meter connections on a first come, first-served basis," Sullivan said in answer to a question about the effects of the recent P.U.C. order banning new connections after June 30.

"We're not working on a crash basis to accommodate all these that are coming in. It's business as normal."

Sullivan said there have been 284 requests for metered service since the order was handed down, and 220 new service applications. He estimated that the company will be able to handle less than half of the new service connections since the order was imposed.

There is still a question whether the P.U.C. will set for a new hearing the order, or suspend its imposition. Cal-Am is not appealing the order, Sullivan said.

"Will Cal-Am answer some of the statements in the order?" quizzed William Gianelli of the Zone 11 Committee.

"The real questions concern interim and long-term supply problems," Sullivan responded. "The design is complete on the Begonia Iron Removal Plant, and the projected construction of the Canada de la Segunda pipeline will be completed in about 90 days.

"Cal-Am is proceeding with its plans, and hopefully we will be able to get short-term financing. We plan to get short-term financing to build the plant, and then when it's in use and useful, we would go to the P.U.C. to get more revenues to meet additional costs through stock, both preferred and common. "But we have to have sufficient earnings on what is on the ground now for the banks to loan us sufficient money to build the Begonia and Canada de la Segunda facilities."

Barbara Hollister, councilwoman from Pacific Grove, asked what assurances the public had that, should the rate increases be granted, Cal-Am would construct the facilities.

Sullivan assured the committee that Cal-Am would build the pipeline if the rate increases are granted by the P.U.C. He added further that the earliest date any decision on the rate hikes are expected is September or October.

Under questioning, Sullivan revealed that Cal-Am drew 3,500 acre feet of water last year from Seaside, but said the pipeline would give the company the capacity to handle additional customers at least through the year 2020, at projected growth rates.

The Canada de la Segunda pipeline would add about 1,500 acre feet to the company's supply, resulting in an increased water capacity of about 10 per cent, Sullivan said.

Sullivan said the water company "doesn't interpret the P.U.C. opinion that the safe annual yield of the Seaside aquifer is 2,000 acre feet as a maximum limit."

"Is it possible that the P.U.C. will come back and say you can't pump that much more out of Seaside until you get more wells? Ms. Hollister asked.

"Not enough is known about the Seaside aquifer," Sullivan said. "We're pursuing this because we don't know when we can build a dam. I don't think we can make a commitment until we go through the EIR (environmental impact report) and other procedures. We don't have the final figures on the dam yet."

The estimated cost of constructing a dam on the upper Carmel River has been roughly set at about $10 million.

Howard Ingels, parade chairman for the Parade of Champions, has announced that 200 units are already in the parade lineup for the 27th Annual Independence Day Parade.

He also state that more units are requesting to participate and he hopes to fit them in by parade time.

The parade will kick-off at 1 p.m. July 6 from Fremont and Trinity, proceed North on Fremont and then West on Broadway and disperse at Del Monte and Contra Costa.

The parade celebration will be preceded by a pancake

Seaside: a scapegoat

EDITORIAL

As more information surfaces, it's beginning to look as if Seaside is being forced to bear the brunt of an intolerable situation caused by the water problems on the Monterey Peninsula.

California-American Water Co. admits that it may be drawing more water from the Seaside aquifer than is safe, but admits in the same breath that not enough is known about the Seaside aquifer to know what's safe and what isn't.

And it doesn't rest well with many in Seaside, the city council included, that all that water is being taken from beneath the city to supply water to other cities, including Monterey.

The point isn't that Seasiders feel insular and greedy; rather that they are sick and tired of being used as the all-purpose scapegoat for the rest of the Peninsula. The fault, obviously, lies with the short-sighted management and planning of Cal-Am.

Already, there is salt-water intrusion of wells in the Castroville area, and new wells have had to be drilled and old ones abandoned. There is a serious threat to some farm land because of the critical water situation.

Seaside is at the very edge of the bay, and salt water intrusion into its water supply is just as critical, or even more so, than in Castroville. The population of Seaside is the largest on the Peninsula, and the stakes are too high to allow the water utility to play Russian Roulette with our water supply.

The unpredictable occurrence that no one wants to see transpire is the intrusion of sea water into the underground aquifer, brought about by reduced pressure from the fresh water supply, brought about in turn by over-pumping.

Should that unhappy event take place, the only recourse would be drilling wells to extract the salt water and then forcing more fresh water into the aquifer--a proposition that is not in the real world because of its vast costliness.

Richard Sullivan, attorney for Cal-Am, told last week's meeting of the Zone 1-1 Water Advisory Committee that a total of 3,500 acre feet of water was taken last year from the Seaside aquifer.

At the same time, the Public Utilities Commission, in its order banning new water main connections after June 30, set the safe annual yield from Seaside at 2,000 acre feet. Sullivan also informed the committee that Cal-Am doesn't feel the limit set by the P.U.C. is "a maximum limit."

In other words, Cal-Am feels no compunctions at all about continuing to draw more water from Seaside than the P.U.C. believes is safe, at the possible risk of ruining the water supply forever.

If that is flagrant violation of the public interest, what is?

Students named delegates

Two representatives from Monterey Peninsula College have been selected as delegates to the 49th annual conference of the California School Employees Association, slated for July 29-Aug. 1 in Los Angeles.

They are William Burgess Jr., 1598 Mescal, Seaside, a groundskeeper, and president of the MPC Employees Association, chapter 245, and Rudolfo Nava, 1555 Santa Clara, Seaside, a language lab technician.

An estimated 2,000 delegates and visitors from more than 600 association chapters will take part in the four-day conclave, representing CSEA's 60,000-plus membership, which consists of classified school employees from throughout the state.

Major conference activities, action on proposed legislation and the group's annual election of state officers will take place at the Los Angeles Convention Center.

Recall Move expected to Fail

It won't work, is the opinion of three members of the Seaside City Council regarding a move announced to oust them from office in a recall election.

The three -- Mayor Jack Oldemeyer, John Craige, and Joe Cota -- are unanimous in their opinion that they retain the confidence of the voters and that any attempt at recall will end in failure.

The NEWS-SENTINEL has received notices of intent to circulate petitions demanding the recall of these three. They are reproduced in full, as legal advertisements, on page eight, as required by California law. News of the impending recall drive was first reported in last week's issue of this newspaper. Other Peninsula news media at that time discounted the reports.

Purpose of the recall move, according to its originators, is to "regain and keep the government desired by the people."

Signatures appearing on the notices are those of Herman S. Nielsen, Harols E. Clark, and D.B. Blackley, all of Seaside. Nielsen last week termed Mayor Oldemeyer's administration a "semi-dictatorship."

Each of the three notices, identical in most respects, contains a 13-count indictment, alleging that Oldemeyer, Cota and Craige have not acted "in accordance with the desires of a majority of the voters of Seaside."

In particular, the three city officials are charged with (a) favoring a city manager type of government, (b) advocating withdrawal from the fire district, (c) removing Pollock as chairman of the health and safety committee "without cause . . . after a good police department had been started."

Also included in the charges are references to the East Monterey water service (owned by Pollock); the garbage collection system; payment of city bills allegedly without council authorization; assignment of sales tax monies; use of military police; employment of volunteer police and firement.

Oldemeyer, Craige and Cota are charged with unjustly accusing Pollock of "tearing down and bankrupting the city."

Accused Men Comment

The three city officials confronted by the possibility of a recall election have issued statements making known their views on the attempt to remove them from office.

Following are the statements:

-- Mayor Oldemeyer: "I feel that this action is a preposterous and unnecessary expense to the city of Seaside. If successful, this removal actoon would be completed so near the time of the regular general election next April, which is necessary, that this council may carry on their actions with the full legal authority they have now, in all matters of city business. This in no way should change a man's way of believing, providing he is conscientious in his belief."

-- Councilman Craige: "I see this recall as a desperate attempt by various special interests to prevent the council from studying problems affecting these special interests. I have great faith in the future of Seaside if we can keep a council that is not afraid to make and carry through decisions after careful study and debate. A recall based on the fact that councilmen have dared to have independent opinions would be a serious threat to orderly government."

-- Councilman Cota: "Let the people speak. I shall continue to do my duty as I see fit. The recall move will have to effect on my actions as a councilman."

Recall Charges Lack Substance
(EDITORIAL)

Last week, concurrent with a news story reporting the existence of a move to recall three city officials, this newspaper voiced its editorial opposition to such an attempt.

Our position, essentially, was based on the view that we could detect no turpitude or malfeasance in office to justify so drastic a measure.

In their published notice of intent, leaders of the recall attempt have now set forth a 13-count bill of particulars against Oldemeyer, Craige and Cota.

If anything, these charges tend to reinforce our opinion that a recall would be unjustified and ill-advised.

None of the accusations is in the nature of a bona fide indictment; rather the accusations appear to be no more than a declaration by Mssrs. Nielsen, Clark and Blackley (signers of the notices) that they have no faith in the judgment of the city officials concerned.

Democracy and independence of thought in government would be short-lived, indeed, if a man elected to office were confronted by recall whenever a segment of his constituency is displeased with his actions.

Dairy Lunch is Opened by Cecil Bindel

Cecil Bindel is well known to Seasiders as past owner and operator of Bindel's Creamery and Cecil's House of Values, both on Del Monte Boulevard.

He has lived in Seaside for over four years at 655 Sixth St. with his wife and children, Irene, 15; Priscilla, 13; David 11; Tony, nine; and Teddy, two. Another child is expected momentarily.

Cecil makes his own ice cream and sherbet. He now has 13 flavors and expects to reach 25 soon. He claims the best ice cream on the Peninsula, and dares anyone to show otherwise. Cecil also packs ice cream to take out.

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor:

Normally we do not respond to letters to the editor. However, a recent letter appeared which contained a number of misstatements and we think it is very important that some of the issues be corrected.

Information regarding personnel transfers and reassignments was totally inaccurate. Two minority teachers are being transferred from Ord Terrace School to other assignments within the district. They will still be employed by the district as teachers. The newly hired Black female assistant principal at a local junior high school has not been asked to leave the district but has been commended for her performance.

Because of decreasing district finances, a Black female dean of students at a local junior high school will be continued in her position for one additional year. At that time, she will be considered for another position or reassigned to a teaching position.

Mr. Sherman also indicates why must only Blacks and minorities be eliminated when this situation occurs. As of this writing, of the total number of teacher transfers because of declining enrollment, 28 are Caucasian, 3 are Black and 2 are Filipino.

I would like to invite Mr. Sherman and other concerned parents to review problems with the district because of declining enrollment, decreasing finances and the necessary personnel changes so that they can have sufficient information with which to judge whether or not the school district is practicing institutionalized racism.

Dear Editor:

As you have possibly seen on the T.V. news last Friday night, the artist Sjef Smeets has been working on a mural designed by him, in the State of California Motor Vehicles Department Building in Seaside, painting a mural in oil of abt. 10' x 15' inspired by the theme "MAN . . . SLAVE AND MASTER OF THE WHEEL."

This mural has just been completed and the colorful thought-provoking wall has already been drawing much attention during the process of being created.

We feel very proud and flattered that my husband was offered the opportunity to add a specimen of man-made beauty to your marvelous area.

Of course, we hope that you will feel an article devoted to this subject justified and attractive to your readers and for that purpose we are enclosing a sheet with data about the artist's background and accomplishments in other countries.

Thank you for your kind attention and cooperation. We will be available for any further desired information.

THE TERMINAL now in use would be expanded during the next two decades under the master plan for airport use being developed. (John Perkins photo)

Airport master plan under development

phase; then comes the alternative plan phase; finally, there is the financial planning and implementation stage. The district is now in the final stages of selecting alternative plans.

One rejected alternative for the future direction of the airport was to continue the cross-runway pattern and develop the north 200 acres of the airport land into an aviation-related industrial area. This plan was rejected because it gave more space than was needed to the industrial area and because of the undesirable, cross-runway feature.

Plan B, another rejected plan, called for essentially the same approach with the addition of an entirely new passenger terminal on the 200 acres that would be used for commercial purposes. This alternative was rejected because the proposed costs of $11 to $14 million were too great.

"This would have generated tremendous ground traffic, that would go into Del Rey Oaks and part of Monterey," Ford said.

Plan C, which was also discarded, provided for the 1,000-foot runway extension with a parallel, general operations runway. Some features of this plan were acceptable to the board, and they were lifted and combined with some other features of the other plans into a new, composite known as Plan D.

This plan, which is what the district has unofficially adopted and which will be subjected to public scrutiny in September, provided for the 1,000-foot runway extension and an additional general operations runway. Sixty acres would remain in the commercial zone for development. A loop roadway pattern is planned around the airport to relieve potential traffic congestion. The passenger terminal would stay where it is now and would be expanded, with more parking spaces. And a parking garage would be added on the bank of land opposite the terminal.

Fort testily contended that this plan is a "no growth" plan.

"There's nothing in this plan that expands the airport," he said. "This is a no growth plan, if no growth occurs. It's a mistake to say that we're going to be spending $20 million. We'll be spending about $1 million a year for the next 20 years. Our consultants predict growth, and this plan would allow us to take care of it, if it comes."

Ford pointed with pride to the additional safety factors involved in the 1,000-foot extension of the major runway, and noted that takeoffs and landings will be higher over Monterey Bay, thus allegedly reducing noise levels.

"We've gotten some complaints from the people in the Fisherman's Flat area about the noise from the jet reversals on landing," Ford said. "With the 1,000-foot extension, they would be used much less."

Some of the concern about the master plan stems from fundamental environmental reasoning: once the wheels of change, growth, and expansion are set in motion, can they be stopped? And many remain skeptical about professed reductions in noise levels, and about potential degradation of quality of life and increased congestion, traffic, and pollution.

In short, some see the plan as a threat to the goose that laid the golden egg of tourism, in whose name the need for the growth of the airport is invoked with a holy ring. There are those who seriously question whether the tradeoffs in promoting the plan will be worth it.

Ford said the type of aircraft planned for regular use of the airport in the next 20 years are the larger, jumbo jets in addition to the ones now in service, but he hastens to add that the larger aircraft are "30 per cent quieter" than the smaller craft.

Federal noise pollution standards dictate that airports must not subject the communities in which they function to Community Noise Equivalent Levels (CNEL) of more than 70. That figure is one selected by sorting a variety of factors, including time of day, ambient noise levels, decibels, and other information. By 1985, the federally-acceptable maximum will be 65 CNEL.

"There are residential areas now within the 70 CNEL contour," Ford said. "That's about six acres in Monterey, but this doesn't mean the district's in violation of the law. It would cost the district $2 million to buy the land, or you can buy noise easements by paying the residents a certain sum of money."

By 1985, with median growth in the district, 45 residential acres would be subjected to noise levels higher than the law allows, Ford said. There are two methods of takeoff by which staggered ascents reduce noise levels, but neither would suffice to meet federal standards.

Physician recruitment to be undertaken

additional dentists in Seaside.

The other findings of the committee concerning recommendatiodations of the health report were:

-- The Monterey County Department of Public Health and Mental Health Services should make itshealthservices readily available to the residents of Seaside and should extend and complement services provided by private physicians.

-- Coordination of health care services shoulld be strengthened, possibly with a "health hotline" serving the need of the community, operating out of the new county health and welfare building, when completed.

-- A health education program for Seasiders should be undertaken through the auspices of the county department of health. Such a program is also planned for implementation when the new county building opens.

-- New physicians' offices should be located in proximity to the health and social welfare building.

-- Funds should be sought to provide community outreach health services workers for Seaside.

-- Additional providers of boarding care for patients with psychiatric problems should be sought in Seaside.

The Booz, Allen and Hamilton report indicated that Seaside has a rate of acute hospital admissions 47 per cent higher than the average for Monterey County. At the same time, the residents of Seaside who participated in the survey indicated their use of physicians was 25 per cent below the average for the country.

Fourteen per cent of the non-military people who participated in the survey said they had experienced difficulty obtaining health care services, and fully 60 per cent indicated their belief that the community lacked adequate medical services.

The report found that, while there is an abundance of health care and physicians' services on the rest of the Monterey Peninsula and throughout the county, there is a marked scarcity of those services in Seaside.

At the same time, the report noted that there is a higher proportion of children in Seaside and a lower proportion of the elderly than in the county as a whole. The proportion of non-white residents in Seaside is 40 per cent, as compared with 12 per cent for Monterey County. Twenty-seven per cent of Seaside consists of Blacks, as compared with 5 per cent for the entire county.

The city of Seaside has a ratio of 1.5 physicians per 10,000 population, while the ratio for Monterey County is 15 physicians per 10,000 population.

"The variance in ratios of physicians to population in Seaside compared to other areas does not indicate that residents of Seaside do not have access to physicians; but rather indicates that residents need to go outside of their community in order to obtain physicians care."

The joint participation of the city and county in applying for a physician recruitment program represents a turning in the direction toward placing physicians in the community to meet health needs, rather than employing the health clinic approach.

The Harambe Medical Clinic, which continues in name to provide limited drug detoxification services, was established several years ago as a venture in the direction of the clinic method of health care delivery. But it largely failed, due to inadequate funding and the departure of some of its key leadership, as noted in the Booz, Allen, Hamilton report.

Redevelopment agency to clamp down on antennas

The Seaside Redevelopment Agency has decided to take legal action against some 27 residents of the Del Monte Heights Redevelopment Project with citizen's band radio antennas in violation of the 17-foot height limitation.

The issue first came before the city council a few weeks ago, but the council sidestepped the controversy and, in effect, bounced it right back to the redevelopment agency.

There is apparently no question whether the owners of the radio antennas are in violation of contract language pertaining to the redevelopment area, even though the regulations specifically mention television antennas.

The owners of the citizen's band radio antennas feel they are being dealt unfairly with, since there are reportedly thousands of similar antennas in Seaside; other residents of the project are unhappy with the visual obstructions caused by the high antennas.

In other business, the agency approved, after public hearings, two use permits for the construction of residences in Del Monte Heights, one to Alfred P. Glover at 1746 Mescal St., and the other to Andrew Righello at 14 Valencia Court.

Aresolution authorizing the sale of two parcels of land in the Gateway Project was also approved. The request was granted to Jack Converse following public hearing.

A three-month extension of an agreement for engineering studies with George Bestor and Associates of Monterey at the K-Mart site was also approved by the agency.

The Coastal Commission has demanded further studies of problems of liquefaction of the earth at the site, located within the Laguna Grande Project. The contract was extended for three months after July 17.

A use permit previously approved to California-American Water Co. for construction and maintenance of a 500-gallon water tank on Yosemite on agency-owned property was reviewed and met with agency approval.

Two bids for an ocean outfall repair to the sewage treatment plant, and for improvements in wastewater treatment to the sewage treatment plant, were rejected by the agency.

The agency also took action to extend to its employes the same 7.5 per cent salary increase recently approved for other city employes by the city council, and referred to attorney Saul M. Weingarten for possible legal action a case of non-payment of rent in the amount of $252.63 owned by Mrs. Tomaso San Paolo of 278 Roberts St.

We don't give credit to women.

We give credit to people.

Let's face it. There was a time when getting credit at some banks depended on whether your name was Jack or Judy.

Thank goodness the world is finally realizing that people are people.

Of course there are still a few die-hards around. So we can't make any promises about other banks. But we can tell you this: When you come into United California Bank and apply for credit, we couldn't care less whether you're a man or a woman. Single or married. Or somewhere in-between.

What we do care about is how long you've been at your present job. What your income is. And most important, how good you are about paying your bills.

And that's what we keep in mind whether you want a United Account®, a Master Charge® or even a personal loan.

So if you're a person looking for credit, why not stop in today and see us about it?

Period.

ASTRO-FUN-OLOGY

July 2- July 9

EXUBERANT ARIES March 21- April 20: The opposite sex will be looking in your direction it's up to you what happens in that area of your life. Take a firm stand on keeping your positive attitudes...let no one pull you down from your well earned "happy feelings."

DETERMINED TAURUS April 21 - May 21: Anger with self and others is not your M.O. so suggest you hold back on giving "what for's" to others. Watch your steps as your being in a hurry could not sharpen your awareness and an accident may result - take care!

VERSATILE GEMINI May 22 - June 21: Being serious is just a "state of mind" and you are in need of this sobering factor at this time. Plans for the future are truly important and the decision making planning must be thought out well so nothing can stand in the way of success in your chosen fields.

MOON CHILD June 22 - July 23: Since time and tides wait for nobody be sure you are SURE in your actions for the time is now for you to act...ideas you've put off for a long time are now ready for expression. Financial horizons are beckoning to you for reaping - your hours of loyalty are ready to pay-off.

REGAL LEO July 24 - Aug. 23: Sudden surprise, while on a short trip, could throw cold water on the occasion...be prepared for the time consuming result - no time is ever lost if well spent! An old friend will appear in your life once again and the friendship will take up exactly where it left off in the past.

DISCRIMINATING VIRGO Aug. 24 - Sept. 23: Personal pressures are quite often "self inflicted" blame nobody but yourself. Folks may be poking fun at you for being so slow in making a decision - wave them off for they haven't had the problems you've had in getting to decision making time.

ELEGANT LIBRA Sept. 24 - Oct. 23: Philosophical principals are important to you and proving them to yourself is just as important but in the long run who cares who's right or wrong? Let go of the argument and press on to more positive activities.

SENSUAL SCORPIO Oct. 24 - Nov. 22: You have the green light for personal activities. Pressures from outside sources are only heavy because, at this time you can't see the way out of the forest, so to speak, for the vastness of your confusion - Middle of July will find you "free and easy" in life's pressures.

EXPANSIVE SAGITTARIUS Nov. 23 - Dec. 21: Opposition will appear to be using underhanded methods to cause you to be uneasy...time will allow you to "see thru" these obvious snares. Romance will be offering you a fresh look at your personal values and worth to yourself as well as others.

ZEALOUS CAPRICORN Dec. 22 - Jan 20: Suggest you pay attention to the young in heart, no matter what age, for they are not paying too much attention to their personal safety..falling, sharp instruments or whatever could be allowing them discomfort. Physical check-ups for you are in order - let noproblem go unattended.

EXTRAORDINARY AQUARIUS Jan 21 - Feb. 19: The opposition is giving in to some of your ideas....be grateful for small favors and try not to be disturbed because they are not buying your total package. An elderly friend will forward a pleasing surprise to you.

MYSTERIOUS PISCES Feb. 20 - March 21: Creativeness is still abounding in your environment. Short trips, not of a vacation nature, will be opened to you for enjoyment, why not? Financial gains are still in the offing - wisdom, in trying to pick which one, will be the difficult problem for a few more weeks - but pick one you will and be quite happy in the long run.

Del Rey Oaks protests water rate hike

The City of Del Rey Oaks has added its name to the growing list of Monterey Peninsula cities protesting a requested rate increase to the California-American Water Co.

The water utility has requested, and the P.U.C. held hearings into last week, the rate hike of about 20 per cent to its customers in theMonterey Peninsula district.

Del Rey Oaks' city council last week decided, just as have the city councils of Seaside, Sand City, and other cities, to ask the P.U.C. not to grant any rate increase to Cal-Am until it agrees to construct both the Canada de la Segunda pipeline and the Begonia Iron Removal Plant.

In testimony before the P.U.C. last week at Seaside city hall, attorneys for Cal-Am contended that the rate increases were needed in order to finance construction of the two facilities, which would add temporarily to the Peninsula's water supplies.

In other business, the Del Rey Oaks council approved a request from the V.F.W., Monterey Peninsula Nisei Memorial Post 1629 to sell fireworks from June 28 to July 4 at a stand located at Monte Mart.

The council also approved a request for a variance to add to an existing residential structure made by Miss Mary Rile. A $2 fee was approved to be charged to residents of Del Rey Oaks who use the dumping facilities in the recreational vehicle storage area located behind the city hall.

The city council also continued a discussion on the drainage gully at "Frog Pond," which had been carried over from the May 27 meeting. Requests by Mayor Benson, councilman Franco and Moises to be out of the state during July.

Design approval granted by architectural board

The Seaside Board of Architectural Review has approved a host of design applications for businesses in Seaside.

In its regular meeting last Tuesday, the board:

-- Approved a sign permit to Seaside Builder's Supply of 1771 Del Monte.

-- Approved a sign permit to Hobbies Unlimited of 766 Broadway.

-- Granted a sign permit to Peninsula Radiator Shop of 1775 Del Monte.

-- Approved the color scheme and deferred landscaping plans for the Silva Tire Co. of 2033 Del Monte.

-- Approved preliminary plans for a six-unit apartment building to Alfeo Antang at 1008 Trinity.

--Approved final plans for the construction of Ocean View Cablevision's 120-foot television relay tower and portable electronic equipment building at 2100 Fremont.

-- Approved final plans for the Bethel Missionary Baptist Church at 390 Elm.

-- Approved final plans by Paul E. Davis, architect, for a triplex at 1169 Trinity and for a professional office building at 915 Hilby.

-- Granted approval to final landscaping and color scheme to Jonathan Beene's townhouse development at 1035 Highland.

-- Approved after review final plans submitted for Adeline Di Lorenzo's 12-unit apartment complex at 1215 Ord Grove. This project has gone through several stages of design and redesign in order to meet city and coastal commission requirements.

-- Denied a request for modification of identification signing to Mahroom's Magic Carpet Lodge at 1875 Fremont.

-- Approved signing for the Thunderbird Motel at 1933 Fremont.

-- Approved the sale of plans for a six-unit apartment building at 660 Palm from its former proposed location at 1090 Hamilton.

Assessments to increase

Monterey County taxpayers will be receiving notices of their new assessed values by July 1, said County Assessor Donald P. Stewart. Final entries are being made on the 1975-76 assessment roll which promises to reflect another record growth in value.

Although increases are expected in every area of the county, the largest gain will undoubtedly be in the City of Monterey, Stewart said. Since Monterey has not been completely reappraised for several years, increases in the market values of properties have considerably outstripped assessed values.

The current reappraisal of the city will result in assessed values of real estate increasing by an average of nearly 50 per cent, with many commercial properties being increased by upwards of 100 per cent.

Increased sales prices of homes and increased sales prices as well as rental values of commercial properties have been considered in these appraisals. Each property has been individually reviewed to assure an accurate valuation and notices will be sent to each owner advising of the new market value and assessed value determinations. By stat law, property must be assessed at 25 per cent of full value and this reappraisal is made in compliance with this law.

Stewart said he expects the local secured assessment roll in the City of Montery to show a gain of nearly $35 million and in the City of Salinas about $27 million.

Amphibious troop carrier to visit Monterey this week

The amphibious troop carrier Cleveland (LPD -7) is scheduled to visit Monterey July 3-7, as part of the Navy's traditional commemoration of Commodore Sloat's landing here on July 7, 1846.

The Cleveland was commissioned in 1967 and has since been assigned to the amphibious forces of the U. S. Pacific Fleet. Currently flagship for the commander of Amphibious Squadron Three, she is under the command of Captain James J. Ridge. Aboard the Cleveland are midshipmen from the Naval Academy and other universities on their midshipmen's training cruise.

Designated an LPD, the Cleveland is a direct descendant, on a much larger scale, of the Landing Ship Dock of World War Two. A troop carrier with a capacity of more than 800 combat-ready Marines, she can land and launch two medium-sized helicopters simultaneously from her large flight deck.

LPD amphibious operations are coordinated from a primary debarkation control station located above the flight deck. Combat personnel can be simultaneously debarked by helicopter from the flight deck and by landing craft carried in the well deck. An overhead monorail crane facilitates the rapid loading and unloading of cargo to and from the boats.

These and other features may be seen fy the public July 4, 5 and 6 when the ship is open for visiting from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. with boat service from Wharf No. Two. Special visits for organized groups of 15 or more from 12:30 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. those days may be arranged by contacting the Naval Postgraduate School Public Affairs Office at tel. 646-2023, no later than Tuesday, July 2. Visitors must be at least eight years old.

Infantry division activated

Two Infantry Battalions, rich in military heritage, were added to the rolls of the growing 7th Infantry Division last week in ceremonies at the Brigade Parade Field, Ft. Ord.

The 2d Battalion, 31st Infantry, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel James D. Hannon and the 3rd Battalion, 32d Infantry, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Thomas J. Marshall which have been in a provisional status became operational.

The 31st Infantry, known as "the Polar Bears" fought the Japanese in the Philippines before the fall of Corregidor in World War II and landed with the 7th Infantry Division at Inchon in the Korean War after which they took part in the liberation of Seoul, the evaculation at Hungnam and the fierce fighting on Port Chop Hill and "Old Baldy".

The 32nd Infantry helped handle enemy prisoners during World War I, and was a part of the 7th Division throughout World War II and the Korean War. In World War II they took part in the recapture of Attu, the fighting at Kwajalien, Okinawa and Leyte.

Nicknamed the "Buccaneers," the 32nd fighting along with the 31st and the 1st Marines landed at Iwon and moved to the Yalu River. Later in the war they distinguished themselves with the capture of "Triangle Hill."

Couple plans august wedding

The engagement of Gretchen Osman of Paso Robles to Salvatore V. Cardinale of Monterey has been announced by the parents of the bride-to-be, Mrs and Mrs. William Osman of Paso Robles.

Miss Osman is the sister of Mrs. Patrick Kennedy of Los Angeles and Pat Osman of Paso Robles.

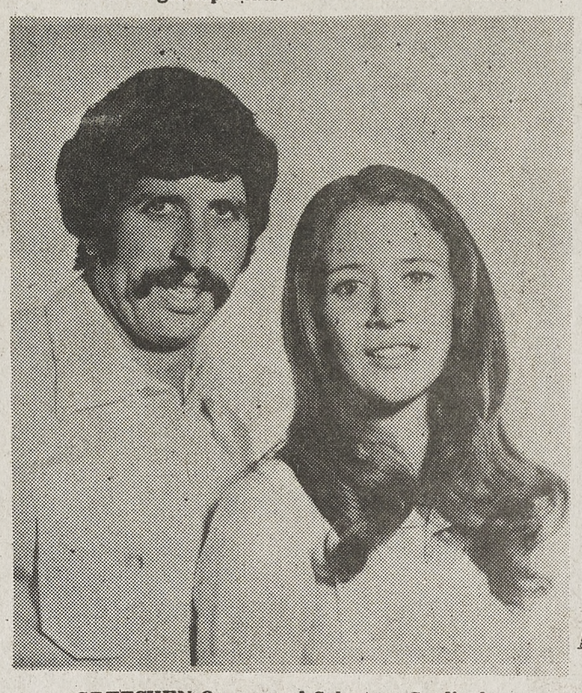
Gretchen is a graduate of California State Polytechnic University in San Luis Obispo and is an elementary school teacher in Paso Robles.

Salvatore is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Cardinale of Monterey and the brother of Mrs. Horace Cardinale of Carmichael, and Joseph and Frank Cardinale of Monterey.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ernandes of Monterey and Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore Cardinale of San Francisco are Salvatore's grandparents.

He attended Monterey schools, graduated from Cal Poly with a B.A. and Master's degree in physical education, and now teaches at Morro Bay High School, where he also coaches varsity basketball.

The couple plans an Aug. 16 wedding at St. Rose Catholic Church in Paso Robles.



GRETCHEN Osman and Salvatore Cardinale.

MR. AND MRS. MYRICK

Middleton-Myrick troth held

Debra Ann Middleton of 1712 Kenneth St., Seaside, recently wed Bernard Eugene Myrick of New York City here.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Middleton of the same address; he is the son of Martha Myrick of New York.

She graduated from Seaside High School in 1974 and is attending Monterey Peninsula College, where she is concentrating in nursing studies. She is also a volunteer at the Fort Ord medical department.

The groom is a graduate of the precinct police school in New York, and is attached to the 54th Mlitary Police Company at Fort Ord.

The bride was given in marriage by her godfather, Robert Smith of 1673 Hardin, Seaside. She wore a long white baby knit dress with long chiffon sleeves.

The best man was Reed T. Williams of the 54th Military Police Company at Fort Ord. Attending the bride were Father Johnson from Fort Ord, Steve Ross of Seaside, and Mrs. Lois Locker of Pacific Grove.

The Myricks returned to the Monterey Peninsula following a honeymoon in Los Angeles.

Registration gets underway

Registration for the Fall 1975 Semester at Monterey Peninsula College is underway and community residents are urged to register for courses as early as possible.

Sally Jones, MPC's registrar, said persons who want to enroll in classes, whether for one class or full-time or night or day classes, should make a registration appointment in person at the Student Services Building.

Students will be issued a personalized registration time slot which will have the effect of reducing long lines and much waiting time. When students arrive for registration at the later date, they will have an opportunity to see which classes are open and closed.

Ms. Jones said some classes which are closed early in the registration process may open again when school begins. She advises students with a strong desire for a particular class to check back with the specific class instructor during the first week of school for possible openings.

Students who desire assistance in making out their fall schedule should make an appointment with a counselor or faculty advisor prior to registering.

Veterans and eligible dependents signing up for classes should also contact the Veterans Affairs Office for information and to complete applications to receive G.I. Bill educational benefits.

Regular registration will continue through Aug. 15. Late registration and program adjustments may be made between Aug. 20 and Sept. 5. Classes begin Aug. 20. Information about registration is available by calling the Registrar's Office at 649-1150, ext. 210 or 211.

Audubon Society schedules program

"Wild Burros, Ghost Towns, Ancient Petroglyphs, Desert Destruction" are the subjects at the last summer program meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society.

The open meeting is on Thursday, July 10 at 8 p.m. in Canterbury Woods Auditorium, 651 Sinex Ave., Pacific Grove. Six local Audubon-leaders will show slides and discuss their recent on-the-spot study at China Lake and in the high ranges of the Mohave.

Phil Broughton, Charlie Pilk, Jon and Fran Handy, Cherrie and Allen Waldo will describe the wild burro impact on native wildlife, such as the endangered bighorn.

A vigorous interagency conservation program has been developed by the Navy in cooperation with the National Park Services to preserve the desert ecosystem. The public is invited.

GAS WATCHER QUIZ

Has the increase in the cost of foreign oil had an adverse effect on the economy of the USA?

Yes. In 1974 we had a trade deficit of more than $5-billion compared to a $5-million surplus a year earlier. That's money lost to other nations instead of being circulated here to overcome unemployment, inflation, and recession.

Winners of high school jazz band competition announced

Winners of the 5th Annual California High School Jazz Band Competition have been announced.

Winner of the full-day competition was Richmond High School, in Northern California, directed by Jay Lehmann.

The Richmond band was selected in competition with ten other bands from high school throughout California. A total of 39 high schools in the state applied for the competition.

The competition is sponsored each year by the Monterey Jazz Festival, in cooperation with Monterey Peninsula College. The festival, a non-profit corporation, subsidizes the competition from its grants and scholarship funds.

Runners-up were Eagle Rock High School of Los Angeles, winner of last year's competition, and Mira Loma High School, Sacramento.

Judging was handled by a select panel of professional jazz musicians and educators.

As California's top high school jazz band, Richmond High has been invited to perform at the 18th Annual Monterey Jazz Festival, set for Sept. 19, 20 and 21. They will appear on Sunday, Sept. 21.

Five high school jazz combos also competed for honors in the Monterey competition. Winner was Berkeley High School, with Peter Apfelbaum on reeds; Tony Williams, drums; Harold Forman, bass; Rodney Franklin, piano, and directed by Phil Hardymon. Apfelbaum was also selected outstanding soloist of the competition.

The Berkeley combo has also been invited to perform at this year's Monterey Jazz Festival.

To help pay expenses for the trip to Monterey in September, Richmond High School received a $500 cash award. The Berkeley High School combo received a $250 award.

Members of the all star band will arrive in Monterey a week before the festival to rehearse, with all expenses paid by the Monterey Jazz Festival.

This year's all star band will perform with Chuck Mangione, John Lewis and Tom Scott.

Students selected for the all star band are:

Alto saxophones: Ted Nash, Reseda High School, Reseda; Eric Marienthal, Corona del Mar High School, Newport Beach.

Tenor saxophones: Jack Irby, Long Beach Polytechnical High School; Loran McClung, Bonita High School, La Verne.

Baritone saxophone: Steve Bergman, Terra Linda High School, San Rafael.

Trombones: Paul Peterson, Dos Pueblos High School, Goleta; Joe Alessi, Terra Linda High School; Chris Brayman, Awalt High School, Mountain View; Luman Hughes, Ygnacio Valley High School, Concord.

Bass trombone: Don Robinson, Terra Nova High School, Pacifica.

Trumpets: Mike Breitsprecher, Mira Loma High School; Roger Ingram, Eagle Rock High School; Brian Pearcy, Dos Pueblos High School; Kevin Bartlett, La Sierra High School, Carmichael; Ron Coolidge, North Salinas High School, Salinas.

Piano: Randy Kerber, Reseda High School.

Bass: Greg Calvillo, Eagle Rock High School.

Guitar: Mike Freeman, Eagle Rock High School.

Awards to outstanding soloists at the high school competition were given to: Trumpet: Roger Ingram, Eagle Rock High School Trombone: Luman Hughes, Ygnacio Valley High School. Saxophone : Marc Russo, Pleasant Hill High School, Pleasant Hill. Bass: Greg Rold, Ygnacio Valley High School. Drums: David Hocker, Corona del Mar High School. Percussion: Brad Kulkin, Reseda High School. Outstanding soloist: Peter

Financial applications requested

Students who are interested in applying for any of the numerous financial aids programs offered by local, state and federal offices, for the fall semester at Monterey Peninsula College, should submit applications before Tuesday, July 15.

Applications filed within this period will receive "first consideration," said Medric Wade, MPC's financial aid officer. After this application period, applications will be accepted from Aug.1 to Aug.5

Federal aid programs are available to both full and part time students while the state-funded programs are only designed for full time students.

Wade said each program has its own eligibility requirements, but two criteria apply to all the programs except the Federally Insured Student Loan Program. Students must be American citizens or resident immigrants intending to become permanent residents and students must be able to show their financial need according to a recognized system of need analysis.

Wade said the list of financial aids programs available to MPC students include the Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant, the College Work-Study Program, the National Direct Student Loan, the California Extended Opportunity Grant Program, the Law Enforcement Educational Program, the Federally Insured Student Loan Program and the Basic Opportunity Grant Program.

For further information call the MPC Financial Aid Office at 649-1150, ext. 256.

How to Encourage Your Child to Read

"Now that I'm grown-up," said one little seven-year-old, "I like to pick what I read." This remark, uttered with great pride, is a reflection of how much children like to select their own reading materials. They also like to own their books, sometimes swapping them with their classmates, but most often keeping them at home so they can read them over and over. "This is my very own book and nobody else's," one child inscribed in her new paperback.

Call it the principle of individual motivation--children learn when they are interested. They learn to read well mainly through the repeated and happy experience of reading books they like.

You can help your youngsters read for pleasure, give them the chance to choose and own their own books by encouraging them to enroll in a classroom paperback book club. The best known of these clubs are Scholastic's See-Saw grades K-1), Lucky (grades 2-3), Arrow (grades 4-6), Teenage (junior high), and Campus (high school) book clubs. Through these clubs, thousands of dedicated teachers over the years have been developing the reading habit in their students.

Scholastic's clubs offer a wide variety of the best in children's books, many classics of juvenile literature and many for the younger grades in four color. One of the most attractive aspects of these books is their price--most books are only 35, 40 and 45 cents.

When your child comes home with a Book Club News, you'll have an opportunity to help make him or her a lifelong reader for just a few cents.

For a free pamphlet on book clubs write to Booklet Distributors of America, 220 West 42nd Street, New York, N.Y. 10036.

LAW IN ACTION

NEW TRIALS IN SMALL CLAIMS

The Small Claims Court is a speedy, inexpensive forum for settling small disputes under $500. The judgment of the judge is final as far as the plaintiff is concerned. He has no right to appeal.

However, the defendant does have a right to appeal. A recent Supreme Court case has made it easier for the defendant to appeal, to gain a "trial de novo" (which means a new trial), in which he gets a brand new hearing in the Superior Court. In that new trial, both parties may have an attorney, can bring in new evidence, and can completely re-litigate the $500-or-less case. The increase in such appeals-trial de novos has caused some judges to urge limitations on such costly and often extended litigation.

The 1973 Supreme Court held unconstitutional the law requiring that appeal by the defendant from a small claims court judgment be contingent on posting a bond or deposit in the amount of the judgment. Such a bond requirement was a denial of due process—taking property in advance. Besides, the banning of lawyers in small claims court deprived the defendant of his right to a hearing with the aid of counsel. He doesn't need to post a bond to get the right to aid of counsel.

One of the problems is the extended use of the small claims court by collection departments of corporations. In many of these cases, the court-wise collector has a great advantage over the consumer-debtor. He should be able to appeal, get a hearing and have the help of a lawyer without having to post the amount of the judgment in advance, reasoned the court.

In many cases, the new trial is without attorneys present. Yet if there is likely to be a "grievous loss," and there is no overriding governmental interest, there should be a right to have an attorney assist in a case without a bond required. Similarly, your property cannot be attached before you at least have a chance to have some kind of hearing with a lawyer.

Recent studies show that only a third of small claims plaintiffs are individuals, while almost half are business creditors. The rest are governmental agencies. About 90% of cases in small claims court result in judgments for the plaintiffs against defendants, of whom 86% are individuals.

Bad habits kill good people.

Too many pills. Too many drugs. Too many drinks. When they don't kill, they maim. The nervous system. The body chemistry. The emotions. And the mind.

The only way to make things better is to start getting sensible about ourselves. If you're taking prescription drugs, follow the prescription. If you're having trouble, see your doctor. If you drink, do it in moderation. And remember, even over-the-counter drugs can be addictive.

Many local health departments have treatment programs. And if you write to the address shown below, we'll send you a free directory of other helping agencies.

You see, bad habits kill good people. And we'd rather you were not among them.

Students learn valuable skills in summer regional programs

With the economy still suffering from the combined effects of inflation and recession, everyone has become painfully aware of their pocketbooks.

That includes students, particularly high school students, who are showing a greater interest in learning salable skills in order to enhance their survival capabilities in the employment market.

This summer, in response to an overwhelming demand for vocational courses, a set of job-oriented classes is being taught in the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District through the Regional Occupational Program.

Although the ROP is itself about six years old, this is the first summer the programs have been extended to summer session. The courses being offered include two sections of auto body and fender repair, child care, checker-cashier, construction technology, custodial maintenance, motorcycle repair, nurse's aide and orderly, and special classes in vocational education for the disadvantaged and handicapped.

Students are completing a home which is under construction at 1775 Broadway in Seaside, near Martin Luther King Junior High, as part of the construction technology course. The 2,600 sq. ft. structure will be sold on the real estate market, once completed, just as other homes so constructed have been sold.

At Seaside High School, students in restaurant sales and management operate the cafeteria, serving meals and drinks to faculty and guests each day of the week as part of their training.

Students who want to learn about auto body repair hold their classes at a body shop in Sand City, where they work in a regular body shop in on-the-job-training. And other classes are held at a number of locations, including Seaside and Monterey high schools.

The total number of persons enrolled in ROP classes this summer is about 200, including about 50 adults who are taking courses in order to learn new skills and occupations, said Porter Baymon, an ROP assistant to director H. Wayne McDaniel.

The ROP began about three years ago in the Monterey district with a few classes, and quickly expanded to meet the great demand.

"Our goal is to offer students training in a salable skill commensurate with the job opportunities on the Monterey Peninsula," Baymon said.

The philosophy behind that goal is the simple but profound admission that not every student should, or needs, to go to college. The objective of secondary education now is to equip every high school graduate with a salable skill of some kind -- either an immediate job skill, or admission to college.

"Not everybody goes into college careers today," Baymon said. "With on-the-job training, their employability is enhanced. And a lot of kids take ROP courses because they work their way through college."

There are four categories of students in the ROP classes: -- Students who are potential high school dropouts who use vocational training for career skills.

-- Students not bound for college who also need job skills.

-- College-bound students who need job skills to help themselves or their parents financially.

-- Adults who return to the classroom to learn new skills or to find new employment.

"The public schools were set up along the lines of all students going to college, initially, " Baymon said. "They're doing an about-face now, and we have to take care of all the students. There's been a vast surge of interest in vocational education. including ROP.

"Once a few courses were offered, the great need was realized," he added. "We're not trying to stereotype students; we're just giving them an alternative. This is all based on Wilson Riles' (State superintendent of public instruction) philosophy that every student should come out of high school with a salable skill, whether it's getting a job or going to college."

The Regional Occupational Program involves the Salinas Union High School District, the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District, the King City Joint Union High School District, the Gonzales Union High School District, the Pacific Grove Unified School District, and the Carmel Unified School District.

Some of the courses are offered at only certain schools within some of the participating districts, and transportation is provided students as needed.

All credits earned in ROP classes are applicable to high school graduation, and certificates are awarded to students upon completion of the courses. Here is a partial listing of some of the ROP classes offered during the regular school year:

Airport occupations, appliance repair, auto detailing, auto service and maintenance, banking careers, bi-lingual office careers, body and fender, building maintenance, checker-casher, construction technology, and police science.
